

Shadows

A number of my photos do have my shadow figure projected. That I found became unavoidable. If I am dealing with trying to make shots or frames about me with as wide an angle as I can, inevitably I would bring in parts of my body - like my feet or my legs - and also the shadow that would be projected. It is just like sometimes in my works there are sun, and flares from the sun in my work, it happens. If I am following the scan necessary to make my piece you have these things coming into play. As for the word shadows, what I am trying to say is we are still very ignorant about what everything is all about. So we do dwell in a shadowy world. We actually dwell on a surface of understanding and of communication. So really it is like a very shallow, shadowy existence that we do have.

Bringing in the element of cosmological shadows, I am thinking that in cosmology, these days, and theoretical physics, once again we just can't explain all matter. Of all the matter that is out there only 5% is of things that we see. There is 95% , which is composed of dark matter and dark energy which is unexplainable so far. Which sort of highlights what I am trying to say which is we don't know everything, there has to be a new physics that has to be invented and also confirmed after a time that will explain these different things.
